

About

Originally from Chile, I am a Designer and Web Developer currently based in Netherlands.

I love to concept and design minimal and creative interfaces, working in multiple disciplines including; interactive design, illustration, web development, art direction and photography.

I am particularly interested in the importance of the message as the axis of the communication, selecting the one with the biggest impact for each project.

I believe in the value of a good idea as well as the need for changing fashion trends.

It is not enough look the web as a piece of design. A deep knowledge of the social & cultural environment, as well as comprehension of art history, composition and colour theory are equally important. The web is a creative space where the equation of all these areas is possible.

“The rules haven’t changed, they have just evolved with technology”

Experience
